Children's Behavioral Health Initiative

Does Your Child Need...

- Help with problem solving?
- Help with positive interactions within the family?
- To build effective communication skills?
- Assistance with safety planning?

In-Home Therapy

In-Home Therapy (IHT) is a comprehensive approach that provides consistent, structured, and strength-based support to children with a broad array of emotional and developmental conditions. IHT services are provided to children (ages 3–20) and their families. The IHT team assists the family in increasing their ability to provide effective support for their child to promote healthy functioning within the family.

The child is the client, but the entire family is involved in services

- IHT works with your family to improve your child's social capacity
- IHT works to build skills, improve interactions, identify community resources, and develop/maintain natural supports
- IHT does individual sessions with siblings, family, and extended family as needed
- IHT assists families in overcoming sibling rivalry, parental divorce, and family changes
